

of Shame at

[illegible]

at that time by regular local trains. He was in the city for about a year ago, when he and his wife lived there for four months. He was in the city for about a year ago, when he and his wife lived there for four months. He was in the city for about a year ago, when he and his wife lived there for four months.

Detroit Free Press of Wednesday —A. F. Wright, the man who defended the young girl whose was told in the Free Press that was arraigned before Justice Webber yesterday morning on a charge of bastardy.
The Free Press says that the girl's name is Ila Palmer, and J. Leggett is her for the defendant. Wright, the paper asked that the matter be adjourned until the next day. The Free Press Wright to bail in the sum of $200 to appear for examination at that time. Wright bail, with John Essex, of this city as surety, and left with his wife and children for Trunk Island. A reporter yesterday that Ila Palmer's story is in every particular, and that the girl is a native of this city. The story at Justice Webber's office great difficulty, and appeared to be concluded with class and grace. She of a wealthy farmer at Belleville, and was on her way to take the train for St. Louis, when she was seized with his wife at the post office, only by evening. She at once went to Webster's office and was sent out a letter from the chief of police. Constable James Tinsler received the warrant, and after arresting Wright. The prisoner, committed to jail, but he managed to escape the officers that he would appear in the morning, and was thus allowed to go to his newly-wedded wife. It is alleged Wright planned $500 in the lands of the city, and that he would never appear. However that may be, it is certain that Wright did not spend jail in jail. He appeared yesterday at the city hall, and was released on above mentioned bond. Miss Palmer is the city, and is quite heartbroken. She thoroughly convinced that Wright ever return.

[illegible]

A taller man, almost slender, but broad and frank, stepped up and took the other's hand. This was Fred Flaisted, suddenly fast for a mile, and the making good speaker; too, if he could be so called. He has given Hamlin a race, but long ago concluded that he had no business with him. John Digges, a man of the same race, but of a different turn of mind, looking tough and well to do, and with a few more years on his worn chin-piece and light mustache; a few, his brother ex-convict; Colonel Judge Elliott, a Greenbacker; Hamlin's old business partner, Tom Elliott, a former bluff and cheery Dave Ward, and a host of others, all deeply interested in the success of the new enterprise, were on hand. The speaker, in the midst of his undertaking, and one in the line of no predecessor of his has ever yet successful.

to know the success that has been won by a number of Menomonee (Quakers) who emigrated to the West. The Chicago Times, of a recent date, gives the following under the heading "Menomonee enterprise":

"The success that has attended the determination in which our quiet quaker-folk, Menomonee, set to work to make roads and settlements in the West, is well known to all. One of these highways, which they thought not aid from the Government, has already been completed, and the others may be judged from the fact that only at it lay through the State of Wisconsin, and the fact that it is a beginning of what they intend to do, appears they have now projected, to the westward, to the Pacific Ocean."

These colonists, who were so accustomed to regard as slow and unenterprising, are now, it is generally supposed, and with fair reason, ranked among the men of energy and ability in whom the North West must rely, in the future, for the most successful business enterprises.

[illegible]

copying the above the Liverpool of a late date has the following com-

